

Curds-and-WheyFace

I think a fundamental part of online friendships that people 'outside' fail to understand is how comforting it is to have friends right there in your pocket who will keep you company in good times and bad, listen to your rants, let you vent, and be supportive whilst offering outsider perspective.

- Need to be alone but need support too? Pocket Friends.
- Something awful just happened and there's nobody around for you to tell? Pocket Friends.
- Need to let your feelings out but don't want people to see you ugly-cry? Pocket Friends.

Keep being amazing, Pocket Friends. You couldn't possibly imagine how important you are.